

LEARNING DIARY FROM RHETORIK-VERBAND BA-WÜ E.V.

of the 4th meeting from Folk without Book, Grundtvig Learning Partnership

24th to 27th February 2011 in Vienna, Austria

Like in preparation of the other meetings we were very much looking forward to meeting our partners and friends again. Especially we got excited about the different songs partners wanted to present from their countries.

Our Austrian partners organized everything perfectly and welcomed us on Friday morning in their building in Vienna. Tina Brach from Sprachendienst Konstanz began the meeting with a very interesting workshop on learning, learning methods and types of learners. We learnt a lot about our brain and how it works and could directly prove some of the presented methods. For us the consideration of different types of learners and how trainers could adapt their methods to it, was a really helpful tool and new approach. Learners liked the most the exercise on remembering words. Everybody could chose his/her preferred way of remembering and work with pictures, paintings, writing something down,...

On Friday afternoon we continued the meeting with our European songs. On the one hand we learnt more about the partner countries and on the other hand we got new impulses for integrating music in our educational processes. To guarantee the usability and dissemination of our ideas we agreed on a structure for describing the methods in our guideline.

On Saturday Jayne from 2qab carried out a very nice workshop on storytelling. Therefore she brought a bag with her containing different things like a small box, postcards, a booklet, chocolate, bracelets,... Every participant had to choose one thing and tell the other participants a short story why he or she has chosen the thing. In a next step people could write down their stories.

Last but not least we reviewed what we had done so far in the project to prepare our internal dissemination workshops and we prepared the last meeting in Konstanz.
